My App: Buddies

There are currently many apps available to find a date or future partner. There's Tinder, Grinder, Bumble, and etc. What there isn't a lot of is apps to find some genuine friends. This app will be called Buddies and the main purpose of this app is to match two people with similar interests from the same age range and town.

This app will be especially helpful for people moving to a new town where they may not know a lot of people and are having trouble meeting new people in their own normal day to day lives. This app could also be helpful for people who have just cut off their connections with their toxic friends and need new healthier friendships. Sometimes fb, twitter, instagram, and other social media apps can also make it difficult to find new friends because you're not sure if the people you're adding are actually looking for new friends to hangout with . With Buddies there's no doubt about whether or not the person you're matching with wants a friendship or not because that's the whole point of this app.

Some of the features Buddies will have is user profiles where you can add photos, interests, age, and other interesting things about yourself. You will also be able to attach your other social medias to your profile in case you would rather chat there after the initial match. This app will also work similarly to tinder with using swipes as a way to match or deny friendships. Swiping up will be used to match with friends and swiping down will be to deny friends. Another feature that will be in Buddies is group chats. If you have matched with multiple people that you think will make a good friend group then you can use the group chat feature to create a conversation among everyone at once. This can potentially be a great way to create a whole friend group. If you're not enjoying the app you can always just delete your profile as if it never existed and move on.
